

COLD WAVE BRINGS HARDSHIP BUT GOOD CHEER TO REFUGEES

Weather Disperses Threats of Rain In the Flooded Mississippi Valley

"WE'LL BEAT RIVER"

States Major General Edward Markham; Crest to Reach Cairo Tomorrow

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 2.—A cold wave which swept over this section during the night, brought both suffering and good cheer to thousands of flood refugees here, and to other thousands of laborers who are fighting valiantly to keep the swollen Mississippi river under control. The cold wave also dispelled the threat of rain.

"We expect to beat the river."

These were the words of Major General Edward Markham, Chief of Army Engineers here in the lower Mississippi River Valley, today, as the flood crest of the Ohio reached Cairo and confluent with the Mississippi. With the Ohio's murky waters sloping over their boots, an army of 4,000 men patrolled the 60-foot sea wall protecting Cairo, apprehensively awaiting the 60.5 foot crest which engineers predict will arrive tomorrow. Atop the concrete sea wall is a three-foot bulkhead. On this eighteen inches of timber filled in with stacks of earth, rests the fate of Cairo. Except for the levee workers, Cairo is evacuated.

Upstream, Paducah has been evacuated except for a handful of men guarding the flood-swept city from looters. The Ohio took a final swing at southern Indiana and Illinois yesterday, and today the flood waters began to recede and the terrific task of rehabilitation began.

Below Cairo, evacuation of thousands of lowland dwellers continued. The few hundred mile stretch between Cairo and Memphis was considered the most critical today.

Pounding flood waters threatened to rush the levee at Hickman, Kentucky, inundating the lower towns and releasing the impounded waters to flood over 18 miles of flats to Pittsville, Tenn., already surrounded by water on three sides.

Other critical points were New Madrid, Missouri, the already broken secondary sand bag levee at Desite, Tennessee, and the dike at Mellwood, Arkansas.

Downstream a levee just north of Friar Point, Mississippi, was opened by engineers when seepage was discovered. The river, pounded by the great volume of flood waters pouring into it at Cairo, has risen to flood stage as far south as Angola, Louisiana.

Reach Compromise

Washington, Feb. 2.—After compromising a series of controversies within the ranks of Senate Democrats, administration leaders today were ready to rush Senate passage of the $934,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill. The measure carried $775,000,000 for relief and $50,000,000 for seed—loaned to farmers. All of the relief funds may be used for relief of flood sufferers. Two questions remained to be settled. One involved a move of mid-western Senators to raise the relief fund total to $1,200,000,000 in order to care both for flood sufferers and for drought victims of the west, and the other a $15,000,000 slash in the house fund for the RA's subsistent homestead division.

"Sissy Weather Over," Says the Groundhog As He Sees Shadow

CANOE RIDGE WEATHER WORKS, GOBBLER'S KNOB, PUNXSUTAWNEYP, Pa., Feb. 2.—A sit down strike in the general manufacturing plant of the National Weather Works ended in time today for the Punxsutawney groundhog to emerge from his hole and predict six weeks of real winter weather.

No little fired at taunts of skepticism hurled in his direction which prompted the great sit down strike, the groundhog broke out in a grin as below zero temperature ushered in his prediction, and he made it clear no matter if other groundhogs last year didn't see their shadow in the sun, there was enough sun at his hole to cast a shadow and that's all that matters.

"Sissy weather is over," the groundhog said solemnly. "In the next six weeks you're going to see more real winter weather than you ever dreamed of."

If the groundhog hadn't seen his shadow, it would have meant spring was here. After seeing his shadow, he wiped his eyes, sneezed and retreated into his burrow.

Tullytown Burgess Urges Flood Relief

In response to the telegram received from Honorable George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania, requesting that a proclamation be issued urging all citizens to aid the Red Cross in flood relief, Burgess Harold E. Roberts of Tullytown has issued a proclamation.

The Red Cross has been receiving funds and the committee of the Red Cross is Mrs. George W. Wright, Mrs. Charles Carson and Mrs. Christopher Johnson.

Whereas, I have been requested by the Honorable George H. Earle, Governor of the state of Pennsylvania, to direct the attention of the people of Tullytown to the urgent need for relief for the flood sufferers and whereas Governor Earle has suggested that February 2nd be set aside as the beginning of a drive to raise funds for the Red Cross to aid the flood sufferers, I therefore, urge all of the residents of Tullytown, beginning February 2, 1937, to comply with the request of his Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania, George H. Earle, and give unstintingly to the fund which the Red Cross is raising for the alleviation of suffering among the flood victims.

(signed) H. E. ROBERTS, Burgess.

LINDBERGH'S VISIT IN PISA; LEAVE FOR ROME

Famous Flying Couple Arrived Late Last Night. It Is Reported

RUMORS CIRCULATED

ROME, Feb. 2.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, resumed their flight to Egypt today after spending the night in Pisa, Italy. A telegram received here from Pisa announcing the departure said the Lindberghs would next land near Rome, but officials frankly admitted they were not at all certain the pair would arrive here, as the Lindbergh's continued to shroud their plans in secrecy.

Fascist officials issued strict instructions to airport attendants that the Lindberghs' privacy is to be respected at all costs.

Rain, snow and visibility along the couple's route, it was believed, might compel them to land here, whether they wished to or not.

PISA, Italy, Feb. 2.—(INS)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who were unreported for more than 24 hours after taking off on a "second honeymoon" flight from Lympe Airport, England, were located here today.

It was learned the famous flying couple arrived here late last night, while aviation authorities in nearly a score of countries were burning up telephone wires trying to find them. They plan to continue on toward Rome at three p. m. (nine a. m. E. S. T.), according to airport authorities here.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh registered at the Hotel Vittoria, where employees were under strictest instructions not to talk to anyone regarding their activities.

The couple spent the morning sight-seeing. Previously the fliers had been erroneously reported over Florence enroute to Rome, but the plane which led to this report was found to be another machine when it landed at the Littorio Airport in the Italian capital.

INSTALLS NEW MACHINE

To give the people better and cleaner work in shoe repairing, Andrew Ferraro, proprietor of Ferraro Shoe Service, announces the installation of a new stitcher. This machine, the only one of its kind in Bristol, enables sewing any type shoe regardless of shape or condition, says Mr. Ferraro. When finished, it gives the appearance of a new shoe and the longer wear will overcome the very little extra cost, continues Mr. Ferraro.

Rob Restaurant Patrons

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Two masked thugs lined up seven patrons and the manager of a South Philadelphia restaurant today and relieved them of $116.50. One of the bandits wore a knitted cap pulled over his face, and the other a white handkerchief over his eyes.

Hunt Mattson Suspect

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2.—Federal authorities today broadcast throughout the nation a description of an East Cambridge man, arrested in Springfield last June on a charge of impersonating a Federal officer, and now wanted for questioning in the Mattson kidnap murder mystery. When arrested the man carried a spurious badge which had been purchased in Springfield. It was manufactured by a concern which also manufactures rubber stamps. Federal authorities were convinced, it was stated here, that the Mattson kidnap notes were fashioned with rubber stamps similar to those manufactured by the Springfield concern.

100 COUPLES SECURED MARRIAGE LICENSES

Good Weather and Good Roads Aided Applicants During January

LAUGHLIN STILL LEADS

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 2.—Exactly 100 couples applied for marriage licenses in Bucks county during January, an increase of 15 over January a year ago. Good weather conditions, excellent highways and courteous treatment in the office of the Clerk of Orphans' Court of Bucks County, brought out an unusually large number for January.

"The courtesy and non-waiting-in-line policy is always in operation here," said Miss Eleanor D. Worthington, clerk of Orphans' Court, "but the travel to town is not always so good," she added. "That is the reason so many couples drove right to Doylestown rather than apply directly to a justice of the peace to secure a license."

Justice of the Peace James Laughlin, of Bristol township, continued his title as "the marrying justice of Bucks county." He married more people in 1936 than any other person in the county, and January was no exception.

FLEETWINGS EXHIBIT CENTER OF INTEREST

Seabird, All-Stainless Steel Ship, On Display at Grand Central Palace, N. Y.

THE HIT OF THE SHOW

"The hit of the show!" That is the phrase used by spectators at the airplane exhibit now being held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, when they refer to the "Seabird," being exhibited by Fleetwings, Inc., of Bristol.

The Seabird, the all-stainless steel, four passenger cabin amphibian, built here and christened here on September 30th, last year, is the center of attraction at the New York show which opened Thursday and continues on through Saturday. It is the only modern amphibian on the floor and it has taken the keenest kind of watchfulness to safeguard the plane. Souvenir seekers have almost succeeded in breaking through the guards in their eagerness to get some small part off the plane. Spectators have just swarmed around the exhibit and literally fought for places of advantage in the crowd from which they might view the glistening ship.

The airplane show has taken New York by storm and the Grand Central Palace is crowded continually by an enthusiastic crowd. But the enthusiasm of the spectators reaches its peak when they crowd about the Fleetwings ship and view this trim ship.

This plane has been very well received and the Bristol firm has booked a number of orders.

ALLOW BRISTOL MAN APPEAL FROM RULING OF JUSTICE OF PEACE

Minot J. Hill Takes Exceptions To Ruling of Justice Richardson

NOT ALLOWED LAWYER

It is Alleged That Certain Witnesses Were Not Permitted to Testify

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 2.—An appeal was allowed yesterday by Judge Boyer in the case of the Commonwealth against Minot J. Hill, of Bristol, who was arrested on January 29 on a charge of passing another car on a hill. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Henry Richardson, of Andalusia, where a fine and costs were imposed.

The arrest was made by State Highway Patrolman J. F. Updye.

The petition for appeal, which was granted, sets forth that certain witnesses were not allowed to testify and that Hill was not given an opportunity to get an attorney and that Justice Richardson had informed Hill that he would "not be bamboozled by an attorney."

President Judge Hiram H. Keller made it plain that the courts of Bucks county cannot be prevailed upon in any manner, whether politically or otherwise, in an effort to have prisoners released on parole before their minimum sentences have expired.

If there is a lawful reason there may be a chance, but not otherwise, he made it plain yesterday at a session of court when Albert Wright, 26, of Doylestown, R. D., applied for a parole after serving time in the county prison for assault and battery by automobile.

GROUNDHOG'S JOB

One fears that Br'er Groundhog will have a lot of sympathy for politicians after today. He is due to learn that this is a time when promises are hard to keep.

Normally, Prophet Groundhog can see his shadow or not see it and know his prediction of six more weeks of winter or an early spring will come to pass as per schedule in some sections of this great but, at this moment, climatically uncertain land. But all weather predictions fail this year. Even nature missed bets she never lost before.

When it snows in the South and the trees blossom in Pennsylvania in January, Forecaster Groundhog, if he is as wise as he professes, will stay in his hole today and let winter and spring fight it out themselves. Any attempt at forecasting this year will be at the risk of his reputation.

Should the groundhog have more winter under his shadow let him rush it along before the blossoming fruit trees, in regions where May is the normal budding season, bring forth buds to have them nipped by pursuing freezes and frosts.

These are perilous days for goose-bone prophets and almanac compilers. They will be a long time explaining their "misses by a mile" in the winter of 1936-37.

ABOUT SAUSAGE

Of course, when one considers the number of hot-dog stands that blot the landscape from the Far East to the Far West and from Canada to Mexico and the number of persons who stop at them for mustard-covered sustenance, it is not surprising to learn that the estimated production of sausage in this country is a billion and a half pounds a year. At least, that is the figure for 1936. And what is more, the value of that product was a quarter of a billion dollars.

It is not to be assumed that all sausage is used for the production of hot-dogs. For there are sausages and sausages. There is the sausage that goes with pancakes and there is the sausage that goes with cock-tails. And there is that delicious bit which adds much to the delights of fluffy whipped potatoes. But what the American Institute of Meat Packers has here revealed is that sausage is not anything to be sneezed at when one gives sober reflection to the major industries of the country.

The institute said increased consumer purchasing power and employment in industrial plants have resulted in an expanded market for products of all types. There also has been a substantially accentuated use of sausage products for lunches as well as other meals among those who carry their food to their places of employment. Hot weather was especially conducive to sausage consumption in June and July.

Wonderful man! He can fly and talk across the oceans and hasn't yet learned to build a house that won't burn.

What if the flatterer dyes borrow money. Praise must be deserved, and that's the easiest way to deserve it.

Loyalist officials are changing the names of Madrid streets that have an aristocratic flavor. The next thing is to try to guess where the streets were.

A covered dish supper was held in the Friends' (Orthodox) Meeting house Friday evening. The Rev. John Goorley, chaplain of the New Jersey state prison, was the speaker.

Recent dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Harriet W. McCloskey were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tomlinson and Mrs. Louise White Watson.

Weekly Letter to Home-Makers

A Letter Written by Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree to Home-Makers will appear in each Tuesday's issue of The Bristol Courier. Through this medium Mrs. Crabtree will give many helpful hints to home-makers.

Dear Friends:

Guests, as well as the hostess, owe some thoughtful contribution to a festivity.

One woman who is sought out steadily for luncheons and dinner parties, owes her success to her conscientiousness of persons; responsibility. She maintains that it isn't enough to honor the hostess with your company—or time—or even to invest in a new gown.

Her unvarying rule is to take some distinct contribution to aid the busy hostess in making a success of the occasion.

To assist in this plan, she keeps a clipping file in a big manila envelope—of just such suggestions as you plan to save, with the best of intentions. Perhaps she locates a novel method of getting over the awkward introduction stage at a big party, or an easy way to "break the ice" and make the crowd feel at home.

The contribution may be a new stunt, or game, or it may be just some thoughts gleaned from an interesting book, or a current play. If you are to meet an author, a musician, or an artist, by all means do him the courtesy of being sufficiently informed of his work so that the dinner conversation may be well rounded.

And if the evening is to be devoted to informal fun, rather than spirited conversation, surprise the hostess by taking along one of the ingenious modern games, or some game ideas.

Yes, "parlor" games are coming back, much to the relief of the unhappy struggler at bridge, who always bids at the wrong time.

Some of the games are revivals of old favorites, some are genuinely educational, and others are sheer nonsense.

But the hostess who is uncertain about the bridge tastes of her guests will do well to prepare a few pads and pencils, and assemble her entertainment program.

Informative and surprisingly difficult is the geographical game of naming cities, which can be played in any size of group. Merely start a city, such as "Rochester," and the next person must give the name of another city (anywhere in the world), which begins with the final letter. In this case, it means another "R" city, such as "Rome," which would call for an "E" name. To be played fairly, one member of the group should act as timer for each contestant, allowing about ten seconds for frantic thought before the city-worker is counted out.

The perennial "Anagrams" is back in fresh guise, with a heap of letters in the center of a board, surrounded by little pens. Each player has a chance to suggest a subject, and holds a stop watch on the participants while they rake in letters to form words associated with the chosen theme. The subject "Boating" for instance, would bring forth words like "oar," "wave," "fish," which aren't so simple when vowels are much in demand. Left-over letters count as demerits when the warning bell rings.

Welcome back to "Beast," "Fowl," or "Fish," which came at me again the other evening from a perfectly clear sky. Of course, you remember that some one stands in the center of the room and suddenly demands the name of one of the three, whereupon your mind becomes a blank.

Paper and pencil games that are entertaining and educational: Ask a guest to suggest some Nature subject, and allow a given time to set down all the words associated with the theme. Or offer a prize for the longest list of words with the prefix "re," written in three minutes.

Scrambled Letters
"Jumbled words" always provide amusement and vigorous forehead wrinkling. Twist the letters in names of cities, states, or prominent personalities, or jumble words associated with the holiday you are celebrating, have pads and pencils ready, set a definite time limit for the answers, and offer prizes.

One of the pet sticklers is the word Scythe, which can be contorted into "ysche," or "tyches." Here are some others for your guests to solve:

Jumbles: 1. Seaside; 2. rice; 3. be so true; 4. to love ruin; 5. I stir men; 6. Nay, I repent it; 7. Lad, go on; 8. Lo, I dress; 9. One hug; 10. A nice pet; 11. great helps; 12. Ben talks.

Answers: 1. disease; 2. precious; 3. tuberosc; 4. revolution; 5. minister; 6. penitentiary; 7. gondola; 8. soldiers; 9. enough; 10. patience; 11. telegraphs; 12. blankets.

Here's a stunt for old or young. The leader starts: "I crossed over the bridge with a pair of grey socks and a cigarette." Then he asks the next contestant what he is going to carry over the bridge.

The uninitiated player wants to take a package, an overcoat or some chance article over the bridge, but is told, "No, you can't get over with that," and the next player has a chance. Each player seeks a clue which will tell him why he may cross with some articles, and not with others. Only an alert player finally recognizes that he may play "cross the bridge" with articles which are being worn by the person sitting on his left.

With such popular party days as St. Valentine's, Washington's Birthday and St. Patrick's Day coming on space, such games as these will be in demand at many a gathering. We can't all have a ping pong table in the cellar. In fact, some of us can't even have a cellar. But we can all enter into the game spirit, and we can all join in the helpful resolution that:

"Now is the time for all good guests to come to the aid of their party—and their grateful hostesses."

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—If we surveyed the hat horizon once a month a different silhouette would be sketched against the fashion sky. Except for a good old standby like slouchy felts that are always good for sports clothes, millinery modes seem to go in and out with the tides. Actually it is the hat on the heroine that dates a motion picture.

Since this is a very feminine season we are embarking upon we can expect to see plenty of veils. We have done one cocktail hat for Jan Wyman to wear in "The King and the Chorus Girl" which has dotted black veil draped over the back of the head, tied like the snood of a Scottish maiden in way to "break the ice" and make the crowd feel at home.

Over the knotted veil is a little tufted hat of silver kid, cocked forward. In the same picture Joan Blondell wears a tiny grey hat made of belting ribbon. The crown rises up to a tiny, sharp peak and has shirred ribbon about its base. The hat is brimless but a sheer, stiff circular veil of silver floats away from the peak of the hat like the skirt of a Russian ballet dancer.

At the present time Mark Twain's classic, "The Prince and the Pauper," is being made. The scene is laid in England in the middle of the sixteenth century and the beautiful gowns worn by ladies of King George's court were done by Milo Anderson. Their hats are of particular interest because they are similar to the ones worn today. All the hair is drawn back away from the face and the hats trace a halo at the top of the forehead with crowns made of colorful chiffon veils that float away in back.

Other hats we can safely predict will be good for spring are Breton sailors, in both straw and pastel felts; pillboxes of belting ribbon straw, like the one Kay Francis wears in "Stolen Holiday"; tiny turbans of twisted silk worn far back on the head; berets that reveal the forehead; and jaunty fedoras that add just the right note to tailored suits even though they are step-children of this ultra-feminine season.

PLAN FAMILY MEALS FOR RESULT OF GOOD COLOR AND TEXTURE

By Rhandena A. Armstrong
(Home Economics Representative)

Of course, color and texture are important points in selecting materials for clothing but they are equally as important in planning the family meals.

Foods present a wonderful variety of colors, flavors, and textures and can lend themselves very truly to beautiful creations. Artificial color in food is both unnecessary and inartistic. Highly tinted puddings are far less attractive than natural products and no amount of skillful decoration can compete with the rare natural colors found in food.

What greater possibilities for artistic expression could be found than those already present in such foods as carrots, red-skinned apples, beets, brilliant jellies, oranges, lettuce, and water-cress and a host of other common and available foods?

A meal composed of fish, potatoes, onions, rice pudding, and milk, while dietetically good, should be avoided as it lacks color. Tomatoes, served either as a sauce or as a vegetable, would add a bright touch of color to such a meal and the attractiveness of the pudding might be increased by a garnish of bright red jelly.

One of the desirable ways to vary a simple meal, is to introduce several qualities of texture. Soft liquid foods go well with hard crisp ones and juicy foods with dry foods. Soups are served with crisp bread, cheese with crackers, fruit salad with wafers, and ice cream with cake or cookies.

Let's be color-minded, and see how interesting we can make our everyday meals by adding some bright colored foods. Many are available from the garden and orchard but color combination is a product of kitchen craft.

"WHERE DID YOU GET IT?"

SOMETIMES, in a friend's house, you see a certain particularly handsome rug or lamp, a new vacuum cleaner, an attractive chair or table. Or perhaps it's a new coat or dress, or some delicious new food-product.

You ask: "Where did you get it?"

Your friend says: "I got it at Blanks."

You don't ask: "How did you know Blank's had it?" There is no need to ask; there is no mystery about that. You know your friend reads the advertisements in this paper. You merely sigh enviously, and think: "I must have missed reading the ads that day."

Make it a habit to read the advertising pages of this newspaper regularly, carefully.

BRISTOL BOXER OUT TO BE A REAL PROFESSIONAL

Chet Castor, Bristol's crack fly-weight who was crowned champion in the Philadelphia District Tourney for 1936, will start serious training for a professional career early in April of this year.

Chet is also the winner of the fly-weight title in the Junior A. A. U. tournament at the Seymour Club, Philadelphia.

Castor, who gives the fans three rounds of real toe to toe fighting, is in demand by all fight clubs in Philadelphia and Jersey.

In an amateur career of one year, Chet had 36 fights, losing nine. In his last 12 bouts, Chet scored nine K. O.'s; won two decisions and lost one.

Fighting in amateur bouts he has fought five champions in the 112 pound class—Ferrara, Kinslow, Afello, Riatto and DiFazio, all champions in their respective districts.

Castor has a modern quipped gym, with a ring, bag, bike, gloves, and a group of sparring mates, who are anxious to see Chet make good on his pro career as he did his amateur career.

Contracts will be drawn up in a week or two by Chet's brother Carl, who assisted him throughout his boxing career. He hopes to secure the best manager to handle Chet in his dash for the 112 pound title, which is now held by Jim Lynch of England.

Chet says: "I have fought the best in the amateurs, and I am going to try hard to fight the same way in my start as a professional in a month or two."

COLUMBIANS MAKE IT SIX STRAIGHT VICTORIES

With "Billy" Harkins leading the attack, the Columbians scored their sixth victory of the A. O. H. Basketball League last night on the Hills' floor, beating the Gaels, 34-31, in an interesting match.

Harkins' eye proved very helpful to the winners for he scored 21 of their points, ten field goals and a foul. For the losing quintet, Ad Roe scored 17 points and Lloyd McGinley 12. The other field goal was made by Hughie Downs.

The Celtics began their drive to evacuate the cellar position by triumphing over the second place Rams. Final score was 45-41.

The guarding of Kervick and Flynn stood out for the winning combination. The winning field goals were made by Eddie Roe and Ed Dugan, both long shots.

Gallagher starred for the losers. Line-ups:

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS IN TRENTON

Tonight, Bristol will desert league competition for a night to journey to Trenton to battle the New Jersey School for the Deaf on the latter's court. The Mutes have an unusually good team this year and hope to beat Bristol, to stop their streak and to gain revenge for a defeat handed them in baseball last year by the locals on the Cards' home field. The Deaf School will go into the fray a favorite as they are generally expected to win.

SKATING PARTY

A skating party will be conducted at Bristol Recreation Center tomorrow evening at eight o'clock, by St. Mark's Altar Society. The public is asked to support the affair.

KITCHEN WISDOM

Even more disturbing than to enter a home and sniff food-laden air is to trace the odor of strongly-flavored food in a saucepan or other utensil, after the dish has been washed.

This may be removed by heating a small quantity of vinegar in the covered kettle, letting the vinegar boil for a few minutes.

All traces of fish, onions or other food will be removed very quickly.

Some authorities claim that the after-tastes of strong cooking in the house can be greatly dispelled by wringing a cloth from warm vinegar and fanning the heavy air, repeating as often as necessary.

pleating. The sleeves were elbow-length and puffed while the neck was simple and round—but Bette went in to cheers over the scarf. To be more specific it was more like an ecclesiastical stole cut off at the waistline... was made of Roman-striped silk pique... had large squares sewed on at each end at an angle... and in each square was a tiny inserted pocket. The stole was then belted down with a strip of blue crepe, so that the two ends of the scarf were anchored parallel to each other in front.

In "Dance, Charlie, Dance," you will see Jean Muir wear a powder blue and white sweater fashioned like a mess jacket. Although that shade of blue makes Jean's eyes look as blue as the sea and is very flattering to her figure, the thing that thrilled Jean about the sweater was the hidden pockets. They were tucked in at the top of the elbow-high cuff and Jean keeps her hanky in it so everyone will be sure to notice the novelty.

Although we are using fewer and fewer lapels each day for both suits and dresses we are not averse to a lapel that boasts anything as unique as a little watch pocket. An attractive touch to a black broadcloth suit we did for Marie Wilson was a tiny slot pocket in the very wide lapel. She wore her watch around her neck on a slender gold chain and then slipped it into the pocket. It was one of those novel touches that makes an otherwise very ordinary suit stand out.

Sometime ago we did a suit for Marion Davies which has since been widely copied. The suit had a tunic top, the skirt of which was widely banded with silver fox. In the deep band were good sized pockets, hidden from view, but convenient for a hanky and placed just right to warm the hands.

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — And now comes the winter caprices of daytime tops for evening dresses!

Many of the new after sundown gowns are distinguished from their counterparts of the afternoon only by their sweeping floor length and the elegance of their material. With their high necks and elbow or full-length sleeves the dresses seem so very naive from the front... but in back many of them are slashed or cut out from neck to waist.

A dress which is a shimmering illustration of this new trend was done by Howard Shoup for Jean sluit to wear in "Her Husband's Secretary." It is silken gold lame made with a floor-length skirt of fabulous width... Sixteen yards of material went into the skirt alone. The upper part of the dress is made with a high neck in front and sleeves like molten gold are fitted to the wrist. However, when Jean turns around the dress shows its sophisticated side. It is cut out from shoulder to waist...

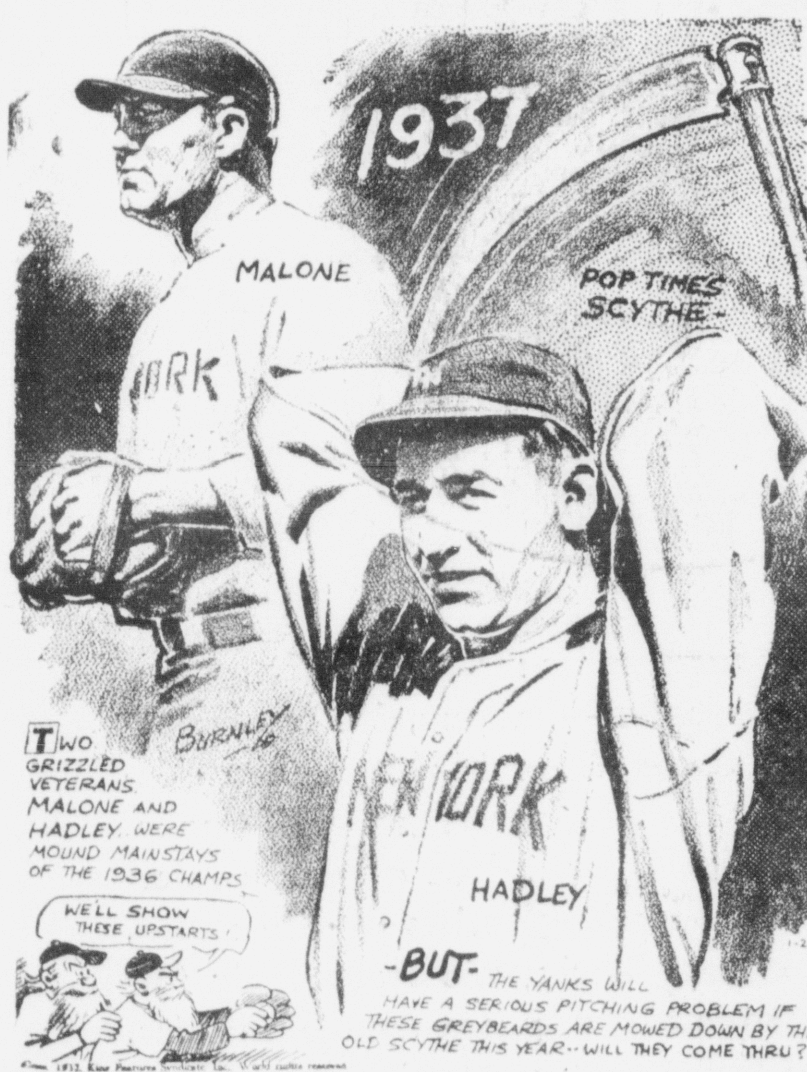

Deep slashes are quite as effective as cut-out décolletés in giving formality to an afternoon-topped evening gown. A dress we did for Jane Wyman to wear in "The King and the Chorus Girl" is black velvet made on pencil slits. Its smartness is gained by two slits and a slash. Both center back and center front arg slit from back to waist while a slash in the floor-length hem-line reveals one leg. Outside the nude tones peeking through the slits, the only contrasting color in the ensemble is Jane's red kid sandals.

Even sports tops are features of some of the less formal evening gowns. A silver and blue lame Jeanne Madden wears is floor length, but otherwise a true shirtwaister style. It has neither a slit nor a cut-out, but has tight sport sleeves which end inches above the elbow.

Although these dresses are newer for the dinner hour they by no means replace the dinner suit which, showed such promise earlier in the season. The metal cloth blouses which were an integral part of the suit in the beginning are now giving away to sheer laces, with cream shades preferred. About fifty per cent of these suits are still floor length although our prophecy is that about a year from this time all dinner dresses will be cut round about to street length.

Defying Father Time

By BURNLEY

Those all-conquering Yankees captured the 1936 flag by such an overwhelming margin that many people are already conceding them the pennant in the coming campaign. The argument is that none of the other teams has been strengthened to an extent where it can make up such a terrific deficit in games.

The coming campaign will start all the teams out with a clean slate, however, and anything can happen in baseball.

Pitching may be the Achilles' heel of the supposedly unbeatable McCarmen. Two of the Yanks' most valuable moundmen in 1936 were those ancient gaffers, Pat Malone and Irving "Bump" Hadley.

Malone was the premier rescue artist of his loop, and Hadley led the league in won and lost percentage besides running up the best winning streak of the year—eleven straight. Now, if the relentless scythe of old Pop Time catches up with these two greybeards in 1937, it may not be a romp for the Yanks, after all.

Of course, Malone and Hadley are very determined to go on winning, and they may do it, at that. Hadley, who has usually shown a tendency to put on weight in the off season, has installed a gymnasium in his home, and is all set to give Father Time another kicking around in 1937.
